

Lalit Varshney

Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, India

Lalit Varshney is Head of the Radiation Technology Development Division at the Bhabha Atomic Research Centre in India. His research focuses on developing radiation processing applications for health care, the environment and industry. He has contributed to the growth of technology related to radiation sterilization of medical products, sewage sludge hygienisation, textile effluent treatment, hydrogel wound dressing, nuclear waste treatment, polymer nano composites and sensors. Mr Varshney has also worked for various projects for the IAEA and is a recipient of prestigious national and institutional awards.