ARASIA MISSION

The ARASIA Mission derives from the spirit and ideal of cooperation as enshrined in the Agreement and is guided by the common primary interests and actual needs of the ARASIA States Parties.

Driven by a shared vision for harnessing peaceful applications of nuclear sciences and technology in support of economic development and social welfare, ARASIA shall promote, coordinate and implement cooperative activities related to research, development and training in nuclear sciences and technology for the benefit of the States Parties, through the relevant national institutions and in cooperation with regional and international organizations, as appropriate.

The overall objective under the ARASIA Agreement is “to promote and coordinate cooperative activities for training, research, development and applications of nuclear science and technology and to implement them through their competent national institutions”.

ARASIA Strategy reflects the following Strategic Directions:

- Aligning cooperative programme development under ARASIA with the national development plans;
- Developing and implementing sound fund raising strategies for ARASIA activities;
- Promoting networking and closer collaboration with partners in the region;
- Developing regional programme aligned to the Strategic Cooperative Thrusts.
